Overview: This report is designed to answer the three essential questions in federal litigation for the type of case covered by the report: 1. What are the odds of winning, 2. How long will this case take, and 3. How much will it cost?

1. The odds of winning are usually expressed in terms of plaintiff win rates, although the defendant win rates are easily calculated (subtract the plaintiff win rate from 100). The report includes three types of win rates: contested, overall, and trial (explained below).
2. The "how long" question is answered in months from case filing to case closure, a period called pendency. Separate pendency figures are provided for all cases, cases terminated by judgment, cases terminated by contested judgment, and cases terminated by trial.
3. The "cost" question includes two parts: the damage awards typical for cases of this type, and the attorney fees and expenses routinely incurred.

Plaintiff Win Rates: The nationwide probability of plaintiff prevailing in cases of this type since January 2000 is 42.3% for cases terminated by contested judgments (the contested win rate), 63.2% for cases terminated by all judgments (the overall win rate), and 62.2% for cases terminated by trial (the trial win rate). These figures should be compared to the corresponding figures for this district, as shown in the chart and table below.

Contested win rates include all judgments in favor of the plaintiff, except for consent and default judgments. Overall win rates include consent and default judgments, and as a result are usually somewhat higher than contested win rates. Trial win rates include only judgments resulting from trials, and therefore include only those cases that survive the pre-trial motion process. Outcomes in which no enforceable judgment in favor of a party is entered, such as voluntary dismissals and dismissals for lack of jurisdiction, are not included in any win rates.

Additional information about win rates is found in the body of the report under the heading "Plaintiff and Defendant Win Rate Detail".

What Will it Cost: The damages portion of litigation expense is heavily fact dependent, but there are nationwide norms one can use to ensure the reasonableness of predicted damage awards in a particular case. For example, the nationwide average award in cases of the type covered by this report (where at least some amount was awarded) is $625,808, and the average amount where judgment was entered as the result of trial is $903,022. The chart and table below show the average and median amounts for both situations for the selected courts. In addition, the table shows the standard deviation. Award amounts not entered into the records of the federal courts or otherwise not brought to the attention of LegalMetric are not included in this report.

Studies have shown that attorney fees and related expenses can run from 33% to 100% of the damage awards. The figures in this report should be multiplied by 1.33 to 2.00 to obtain a range of total cost for this type of litigation.

Additional information about damages and litigation expenses is found in the body of the report under the heading "Damages and Other Litigation Expenses".

Note that these expenses could be even higher if the case at issue has a higher than average damage award, and could be less if the case is terminated quickly.
